DR. SAMUEL BELKIN

Every institution of higher learning can take pride, and justifiably so, in its graduates, and their achievements. But as the very first group of young women to be graduated from Stern College, yours is indeed a singular accomplishment, for you have turned an ardent dream into a glowing reality.

Just a few years ago the seed of a momentous idea was planted—the idea of creating a liberal arts college under Jewish sponsorship to give to young Jewish women everywhere an education in the precious traditions and principles of Judaism, as well as in academic subjects. Four years ago, when you first entered Stern College, you gave this idea fruition.

Today, as you emerge as the first graduates, you have truly made it blossom forth gloriously, and I am certain that your pioneering spirit will prove an inspiration to all Stern College students in the future.

The progress you have shown in the past few years, in intellectual and in spiritual development is a tribute to your ingenuity and ability, and a vindication of our faith in selecting you as the initial class at Sern College.

Our beloved Yeshiva University also has made great strides. The recent years have seen the university grow not only in physical scope, but also in its increasing efforts to preserve the cherished heritage of Judaism.

You have come from many parts of the United States, even from other nations, to study at Stern College. You have brought infinite credit to yourselves and to your families, and have significantly enriched the entire Jewish community.

May I congratulate you as you mark this memorable milestone in your lives. I am confident that as you return to your home communities you will serve as articulate spokesmen for the goals and ideals for which Stern College was created.

our president

MR. MAX STERN

At this time I feel like any parent as he watches his children grow . . . first crawling, then toddling, finally walking away from home. There is a touch of immeasurable sadness in this, but always a very great pride.

I know each of you. This is made possible because Stern College is no ordinary institution. Your classes were relaxed and informal. You could drink together of the deepest joys and pains of personal progress. You struggled to build your own value systems. In addition to a full program of arts and sciences, you found at your disposal the rich heritage of Judaism and all the gathered treasures of the past. I am no stranger to your intellectual and spiritual development.

I am a deeply proud man. You spent your last four years digging the foundation for something magnificent. You studied, prayed, played . . . where no one ever went before. It fell on you, as the very first graduating class of Stern College, to kindle a light, which is to guide every class in the future.

Now you are leaving us to go out into the world. It is a vast world, filled with many problems. It is your job to rekindle the light of this world. At present women are leaving the home in ever-increasing numbers to go into business and the professions. This is often being done at the expense of family closeness and religiousness. Families find themselves lost and alone, cut off from the spiritual lifeline of the past. As members of your community, each of you faces serious choices. You will gain comfort from the teachings of the past which you received at Stern College, and nourishment from the wisdom of Torah.

The doors of Stern College are always open to you for guidance and counsel. I hope you will come back often to visit with us. I will always remember you.

In his twin capacity of registrar and assistant professor of English, Dr. Dan Vogel wields a double-edged pen mightier than any sword. He joined the faculty of Yeshiva College in 1949, after a year at Rutgers University, as an instructor in English. He transferred to Stern College in 1954, the institution's initial year, and became registrar in 1955. In June, 1956, Dr. Vogel was elevated to an assistant professorship.

A native of Brooklyn, he was graduated from New Utrecht High School in 1944, and received a B.A. degree in English from Brooklyn College four years later. With the aid of a graduate teaching fellowship he took his M.A. Degree in American Literature at Rutgers University in 1949, and in 1956 he was granted the doctorate in that field by New York University.

Although Dr. Vogel is a married man with a family of three children, he has found time to hold various offices in the Young Israel Organization, on both the local and the national levels. He is also the author of articles on higher Jewish education which appeared in The Jewish Parent, as well as of an article on Melville which is scheduled for publication this year in Nineteenth Century Fiction.

MRS. ELIZABETH ISAACS

If a life of constant and varied activity constitutes a good preparation for a Director of Student Activities, then it would be difficult to find a more suitable person for the position than Mrs. Elizabeth Isaacs, who has held that post at Stern College since the spring of 1955. Born and reared in New York City, Mrs. Isaacs was graduated from Barnard College where she specialized in French, a subject which she subsequently taught in the public high schools from time to time. After her marriage to Dr. Moses L. Isaacs, she took an increasing interest in community affairs. Her most important work in her own estimation is her activity with the Women's Branch of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America. She was national president of the organization and served as a member of the speakers' bureau. At present she is honorary president of the organization. Mrs. Isaacs is one of the few women members of the board of directors of the Union and is a member of its Kashruth Commission.

Mrs. Isaacs has also been active in numerous other organizations in official capacities, including holding the offices of Honorary President of the Sisterhood of Ohab Zedek in Yonkers, New York, and chairman of the Conference Committee of National Jewish Women's Organizations.

The important things in life are worth waiting for—cheerfully.

Bubble bubble, toil and trouble.

Ah, take the cash and let the credit go, nor heed the rumbling of an impatient queue.

Back in Vienna they didn't worry about "a little bit of a middle bit . . ."

The keepers of the door, that lift us to the heights and plunge us down . . . hail to thee blithe spirits!

Two heads are better than one.

Can't understand the humor in a high powered microscope.
